*American teens don't care about television anymore

In one study, over 5,500 American teenagers were asked how much time they spent watching videos on various platforms. The winner turned out to be Netflix: on average, respondents admitted to spending 38% of their time watching videos on that platform. Within this group, respondents spent 26% of their time on YouTube, and 23% watching cable TV. What is more, the number of American teenagers who do not see the need to have a cable or satellite TV has been growing steadily, from 32% in 2012 to 55% in 2017. This trend is not only true of teenagers: another study among US college students showed that only 8% of the respondents did not have a Netflix account.
