5 Model answer:

Hi John

Thanks for your email.

To answer your question, my favourite singer is Ed Sheeran. He sings pop music and he plays the guitar. He also raps in some of his songs. Last year, I saw him in concert and it was amazing! He doesn't have any musicians on stage with him. It's just him and his guitar.

I like him because he raps really fast and he is very original. If you have the chance to see him in concert you should go. I think he is one of the most talented musicians in the world!

Best wishes, Paul

Tests at school are very important and every student prepares for them differently. Some prefer to study constantly throughout the year, whereas others leave all their revision until the last minute. I can understand both points of view.

To study regularly, you have to be very organised. You must review your notes before and after lessons and always be asking your teacher questions when something is not clear. The advantage of this is that you do really learn better, but the disadvantage is that it takes a lot of time.

On the other hand, if you leave it to the last minute it is possible to do a test and remember something that you studied the night before. However, it is also true that you cannot study everything the night before because there is not enough time. In addition, if you have to revise for more than one subject, the information can become mixed up.

Personally, I think it is best to study regularly and make summaries of your notes. You can review these easily the night before without feeling stressed.

Description of Performance	Points
No answer is written, the student has not understood the question, he or she has answered a different question completely, or what is written is largely unintelligible and does not convey the intended meaning or show any awareness whatsoever of appropriate tenses and language.	0
The student has shown a very basic understanding of the question and has made an attempt at answering it. The student has written substantially less than the specified word count, and there are serious inconsistencies and inaccuracies in the language. Ideas are not linked together in a logical and clear manner and meaning is not conveyed in satisfactory terms.	1
The question has been partially or almost fully understood. The student has written less than the specified word count and he or she has covered some or all of the points, but only partially. There are some issues with sentence construction and inconsistencies and inaccuracies in the grammar and vocabulary that interfere with meaning. The student's response is not cohesive and seems awkward.	2
The question has been almost fully understood, and the student has written close to or less than the specified word count. The student has made a reasonable effort to cover everything. He or she has mostly used appropriate tenses, grammar, and vocabulary, although with frequent errors. Meaning is reasonably clear and the sentences follow a logical train of thought to some extent.	3
The question is fully or almost fully answered in the specified word count. The student has made a reasonable effort to cover everything. He or she has demonstrated a good command of the appropriate language and used relevant grammar and vocabulary accurately, although with occasional errors (that don't interfere with meaning). The student has used cohesive devices, such as linking expressions and sequencers appropriate to the level.	4
The question is fully answered in the specified word count. The student has covered everything. He or she has used accurate and appropriate grammar and vocabulary, with very few, if any, errors. There is a natural or logical progression from one sentence to the next and meaning is totally understood. The student shows a good command of cohesive devices, such as linking expressions and sequencers appropriate to the level.	5
