

UNIT 1 >>> Collaborate to organise a group activity

A Unfortunately one of your classmates is leaving school. You want to arrange a surprise 'goodbye party' and get him/her a gift to remember you all. Decide what to buy and how and what you are going to do to make the celebration special. Work together to plan and make it a success.

B During the summer holidays you want to arrange a barbecue with school friends. Your parents say they are happy for you to use the garden. They will cook the food on the barbecue, but you must plan the event, get the food with friends and organise it. They want to know when it is, who is coming and what activities you are planning. Work together to make sure the barbecue is a success.

C A group of students from your class wants to organise a charity fun run. Decide which charity you will run for, the amount of money you want to collect and how you will get it. Then agree on the best way to prepare and how you will train together. Work as a group to make the fun run a success and collect as much money as you can.

REFLECTION POINT

Group activities are more successful when everybody contributes ideas, has a specific job to do and does an equal share of the work.

UNIT 1 >>> Collaborate to organise a group activity

A Unfortunately one of your classmates is leaving school. You want to arrange a surprise 'goodbye party' and get him/her a gift to remember you all. Decide what to buy and how and what you are going to do to make the celebration special. Work together to plan and make it a success.

B During the summer holidays you want to arrange a barbecue with school friends. Your parents say they are happy for you to use the garden. They will cook the food on the barbecue, but you must plan the event, get the food with friends and organise it. They want to know when it is, who is coming and what activities you are planning. Work together to make sure the barbecue is a success.

C A group of students from your class wants to organise a charity fun run. Decide which charity you will run for, the amount of money you want to collect and how you will get it. Then agree on the best way to prepare and how you will train together. Work as a group to make the fun run a success and collect as much money as you can.

REFLECTION POINT

Group activities are more successful when everybody contributes ideas, has a specific job to do and does an equal share of the work.