4.1. ____

The Perfect Matchmaker is an American reality television series on Channel B4. It is now one of the most-watched shows on TV, but when it premiered in March 2008, few people wanted to even switch it on. Put off by the silly subject matter, the audience was originally very skeptical about the programme. It was only when a famous singer appeared on the show that it attracted millions of viewers.

4.2. ____

Yet another reason for the show's tough beginnings was its host. The first woman running the programme was rather disliked and people considered her to be too big-headed. Luckily for everyone, she was changed after the first season. It might have been why the viewers' ratings improved and the show has been successful ever since.

4.3. ____

Season 2 of The Perfect Matchmaker apparently brought the station billions of dollars. The matchmaking agency whose job the programme shows made a lot of money too. No wonder that with such profits the series has continued for the last five years and numerous matchmaking agencies opened up, hoping to make profit from the dating industry.

Text 1.

Hi Penny,

I've just come back from Zolden. You know how much I love skiing, right? Well, the place is a paradise for winter sports lovers! We were skiing five hours a day, so I'm completely exhausted. But it doesn't mean I want to call off February. Oh, no! I can't wait. I don't mind going to the same place, because everything was just fine. Let me know that the dates haven't changed and I'll start looking for the accommodation.

Kate

5.1. Kate wrote the e-mail to Penny to

- A. call off their skiing holiday.
- B. ask her for the accommodation details.
- C. confirm their skiing holiday in February.

Text 2.

One of the wackiest sports ever is cheese rolling. If you think it's a regular race, you're completely mistaken. It's far from civilised, in fact. People crush bones, fall down the hill, bump forcefully into one another only to catch huge rolls of cheese. The best known event is Cooper's Hill Cheese-Rolling and Wake, held in Gloucestershire, UK, where competitors run after almost 4-kilogram Double Gloucester cheese pieces. The first person to grab the cheese wins and gets to take it home. The winners are given the prizes after the competition. Hundreds of participants, media and loads of onlookers come to Gloucestershire from around the world for this unusual event. Would you like to come, too?

5.2. In the sports discipline described in the text,

- A. you can win loads of prizes.
- B. participants can get hurt.
- C. Gloucestershire has the best team.

Text 3.

The future of Robert Lewandowski is now clear. The Borussia Dortmund striker has just signed a pre-contract agreement to join the biggest rival of his current team – Bayern Munich – in June. The brilliant football star of Polish origin, who agreed to the terms of a five-year deal with Borussia, will arrive in Munich on a free transfer when his current contract expires. The media speculate that Munich decided to buy the player to weaken their rival before next season.

5.3. The author of the text

- A. speculates about the future of a football player.
- B. explains the terms of the agreement that Lewandowski signed.
- C. gives details of an important event in sport.

Zadanie 6.

Przeczytaj tekst. Z podanych odpowiedzi wybierz właściwą, zgodną z treścią tekstu. Zakreśl literę A, B albo C.

The Dodger, Charley and the other boys went out every morning. Oliver stayed with Fagin. But the little boy had some duty, too. He worked on the silk handkerchiefs. All the handkerchiefs had letters stitched onto them. Oliver had to cut these stitches off very carefully.

For three days, the boys came back with nothing. Fagin was very angry. He shouted at the Dodger. He tried to push Charley downstairs.

The next day, Fagin sent Oliver out with the other boys. The Dodger and Charley walked very slowly along the crowded streets. Oliver was afraid they would all be late for work. The boys walked on. They went up a narrow street and onto a square. There were shops and stores selling books on one side of the square. At one of the stalls, an old gentleman was looking at the books. He picked one up and began to read.

The Dodger stopped. 'He'll do,' he said quietly.

'Right,' Charley whispered.

Then two boys walked across the square. Oliver followed. The old gentleman went on reading. He had grey hair and wore gold spectacles. He wore a long, dark green coat and white trousers.

The Dodger moved nearer. The next moment, the old gentleman's silk handkerchief was in the Dodger's hand. The Dodger and Charley ran and hid in the doorway of a house.

The old gentleman touched his pocket. He turned round quickly. He saw Oliver standing behind him.

'That boy's got my handkerchief!' the old gentleman cried.

Oliver turned and ran.

Adapted from Macmillan Readers 'Oliver Twist' by Charles Dickens

 - C. ran away without him.
- 6.3. The old gentleman reading a book
- A. accused Oliver of theft.
 - B. was selling books at the stall.
 - C. found a handkerchief and picked it up.

Zadanie 7.

Przeczytaj tekst, z którego usunięto trzy zdania. Wpisz w luki 7.1.–7.3. litery, którymi oznaczono brakujące zdania (A–E), tak aby otrzymać logiczny i spójny tekst. Uwaga: dwa zdania nie pasują do żadnej luki.

Do you know who discovered DNA? I'm sure some names do ring a bell, but chances are you might actually be wrong.

Many people believe that an American James Watson and an Englishman Francis Crick discovered DNA in the 1950s. However, this is not true and evidence for DNA was first found in the late 1860s by a Swiss scientist. 7.1. ____ In a way, Watson and Crick only put the puzzle pieces together.

It all started in 1869, when Friedrich Miescher discovered a very small element of which blood was made and called it 'nuclein'. He didn't manage to finish his work – other scientists continued the experiments and learnt more about the DNA structure. 7.2. ____

Clearly, it was only thanks to the research done before that Watson and Crick managed to draw the structure as we know it today. 7.3. ____ Without a few gifted scientists, Watson and Crick wouldn't be so famous at all.

- A. Then, other scientists carried out a few more experiments and uncovered another piece of the DNA puzzle.
- B. Despite his contribution he remains rather little known in the world of science.
- C. Unfortunately, few people remember their success or their names.
- D. We know what the structure looks like thanks to the work of many talented people from various branches of science.
- E. In fact, they only analysed some information and made the right conclusion.
