AUDIOSKRYPT

Track 01

Fiona: Hi, Ted. What did you do on New Year's Eve?

Ted: Nothing special. I stayed at home and watched TV.

Fiona: Why? Weren't you invited to some party at your friend's house?

Ted: I was, but I got sick right after Christmas and I spent a whole week in bed.

Fiona: You poor thing. Did you at least have some company?

Ted: Yes, my cousin came to stay with me for the night. We watched some films, toasted the New Year at twelve and went to bed. How about you? Did you do anything interesting?

Fiona: Yes. I went to a 'Hobbit' marathon at Cinemax. I'd never done anything like that before.

Ted: That's quite original. Did you enjoy it?

Fiona: It was OK. I've always liked Tolkien, both his books and films based on novels. Plus I had no other plans, so on the whole it was a good decision.

Ted: So if you think about it, we did exactly the same thing – watch films. The only difference was where we did it.

Fiona: You're right! Let's hope next year we will both go to a fancy party together and dance the whole night.

Ted: I'll keep my fingers crossed.

Track 02

2.1.

If you're planning a holiday at the seaside, there is one place worth visiting. It's in Sicily. I went there three years ago with my family. What made it so special was the location. It was right by the seaside, just a three-minute walk to the beach. The rooms were elegant, nicely decorated and very comfortable, the food was delicious and the evening entertainment was really fun. The view overlooking the sea was breathtaking. It's worth every dollar you have to pay for your stay there.

2.2.

What can I say ... all of our guests are happy with the service we provide. There haven't been any complaints and most of our guests later recommend our place to their friends and family. Why don't you come and see for yourself. We are open all year round, so you're welcome to come both in the summer and in winter. You do need to make a reservation in advance as in high season we are fully booked.

2.3.

A friend of ours recommended this hotel and I must say he was right. Everything is perfect – the weather is great, we can stay all day on the beach. The sunsets are beautiful. Originally we were thinking of going to the mountains, but coming here was a good choice. I don't have to go trekking, but I just rest on a sunbed all day... (laughs)

2.4.

We've had an invitation to this place for a long time. My friend lives here and runs a small hotel. We finally found some time, packed our bags and here we are. The view of the valley is breathtaking. We go hiking every day. It's pretty cold though – you can even see some snow high up, look! But we can't complain. After all, it's not the Mediterranean!

Track 03

Text 1.

Rose: Have you found a job for the summer yet?

Martin: Yes! Haven't I told you? I'm going to work in the ticket office of the local cinema.

Rose: That's amazing!

Martin: It is! I'll work four nights a week, two of which have to be at the weekend.

Rose: How much are you going to make?

Martin: Not much, but it will give me just enough pocket money. Plus, I can watch all the films!

Rose: Wow! Looks like you have a great summer ahead of you.

Text 2.

To prepare a frittata, or an Italian omelette, you need eggs, red and green peppers, some broccoli, zucchini, some cheddar cheese and herbs of your choice. You also need some olive oil to fry it. Put the vegetables on the pan, fry them slightly. In a bowl, mix the eggs with a little bit of milk, add the spices and herbs and pour the liquid onto the pan and put the cheese on top. Fry until the eggs are fully cooked.

Text 3.

Lidia: I want to support some charity and I thought of handicapped children. Do you know any organisations?

Ben: Not really, you should check online. But why handicapped?

Lidia: For a number of reasons, really. There is a girl in my school in a wheelchair. She's really cool and she does everything we do, but I think not many children have such an opportunity.

Ben: How would you like to support this charity?

Lidia: Well, not by donating money, because I haven't got much. I'd rather meet the people and organise activities for them after school or at the weekends.

Ben: That's great! Good luck with it.

Text 4.

To take part in the English course at our university, it is necessary for applicants to have English Literature as one of their A Level subjects. If English Literature is not offered at your school or college, you may choose to combine English Language and Literature. If you want to get extra points and have more chances to be accepted, you should consider taking Modern Languages or History in the exam, but it's not obligatory. For specific information visit our website.
