Track 01

- Robert: Look at this, Carol!
- Carol: What is it, Robert?
- Robert: The Petronas Twin Towers in Kuala Lumpur. Until 2004 they were the tallest skyscrapers in the world.
- Carol: And they aren't anymore?
- Robert: Not since they built Taipei 101 in China.
- Carol: Is it now the tallest one?
- Robert: No, now there is one in Dubai.
- Carol: I don't understand the obsession with the tallest building. Why do people pay for such things? Is there some kind of competition?
- Robert: It may make no sense to you, but for architects it's like crossing some limits.
- Carol: So which one of these do you like most?
- Robert: Well, the ones in Taipei or Dubai might be bigger, but I think the Petronas Towers look a lot better. Especially at night.
- Carol: Perhaps you're right, but this photo here is rather poor quality. You can neither see the design of the building nor what it looks like in the general landscape.
- Robert: Oh don't be so critical. And trust me – it does look good! When I was in Malaysia I went to see it and it was breathtaking. It's huge, but at the same time seems so light and elegant.
- Carol: Oh, I've always felt jealous of that trip. To be honest, I wouldn't mind going there as well. Maybe I could finally appreciate all the fuss about tall buildings. You aren't going there any time soon, are you?
- Robert: Actually, I am. If you decided to join me, we could ...

2.1.

I love everything about Thanksgiving. Meeting friends, having a good dinner all together with lots of delicious food. We often invite people to our house. But this year we decided to do something special – we saw this advertisement and we booked a 4-day trip to Lake Tahoe. It is quite far, because we live next to the Canadian border, but we managed to buy it quite cheaply. So, one more week and we're off!

2.2.

Hi, Max, it's your mum speaking. I haven't been able to get in touch with you for two days. Are you OK? Anyway, I'm calling to tell you that this year the Thanksgiving dinner is at our place. Aunt Betty has different plans, I think she's going to Canada to visit her mother-in-law. I hope that both you and Anna can come. It would be great. Let me know about your plans. Bye!

2.3.

To start with, the shops are not closed everywhere, as in some of the Atlantic provinces it's not a national holiday. Also, perhaps most importantly, the date of the celebration is different – not the fourth Thursday in November but the second Monday in October. And people are thankful for different things. When it comes to the dinner itself, the recipes are almost the same.

2.4.

Have you got any plans for the Thanksgiving weekend? Why not come and pick up a few bargains! We would like to invite all our customers to a sale day, which means you can buy most products at reduced prices. Don't be late! The number of sale items is limited. We open on Friday at 9.

Text 1.

Sam: Guess what! My parents have just decided to buy a house!

Jane: Really? Where?

Sam: In the suburbs, so I guess I'll have to get used to living away from all the pubs and cinemas and shopping centres.

Jane: You'll be fine. Living close to the centre does have a number of disadvantages, too. But tell me more about the house.

Sam: It's quite new, so it doesn't need any renovations. What I like most about it is the huge garden.

Jane: Wow! Has it got a swimming pool?

Sam: Well, that's one of the things that is missing. But my dad promised to have it installed before the summer next year.

Text 2.

Boy: Have you found anything interesting?

Girl: Not really. Nothing seems to be good enough. And when it is, we can't afford it.

Boy: Have you been everywhere?

Girl: Come on! This place is the size of a football field – we'll never manage to go everywhere.

Boy: Look! This looks great. He could wear it to the gym. And it's twenty per cent off.

Girl: Let me see. He's got a similar one and he does wear it a lot. Maybe we could get him another one.

Boy: I'll tell you what we can do – why don't you ask the lady how many days we have to return it. We'll keep the receipt and if he doesn't like it, we can always take it back or exchange it for some other gym or football clothing. What do you say?

Girl: Sounds like a plan!

Text 3.

One of the popular diets these days is the Raw Food Diet, or Raw Foodism. It is based on foods and drinks which are not processed, are completely plant-based, and, ideally, organic. Raw foodists believe that at least seventy-five per cent of what you eat should consist of uncooked food. Some of the typical ingredients on the menu are fresh and dried fruit and vegetables, coconut milk and nuts. Some people dare to eat raw meat and eggs, too.

Text 4.

The latest reports show that unemployment has recently gone up to 12.9 per cent. This may mean that more and more people are enrolling at unemployment agencies and are willing to look for a job. The final numbers, however, are not very optimistic for the government which is hoping for re-election in February next year. Therefore, reducing the unemployment rates has now become the government's main concern.

Text 5.

I hate this place, I'd rather be at home. It smells worse than a hospital. That's why I don't come here too often and luckily for me, I don't need to. See, my mum always told me that if I brush my teeth properly, I won't have problems in the future. OK, I'm next.

Text 6.

One of the strangest inventions ever is the waist measuring belt. It's got a centimetre on it thanks to which you know if you're growing bigger the moment you put on your trousers. It has become so popular that the inventor has difficulty producing the desired amount. Due to its popularity, the price of the belt has doubled. Luckily, it is still easy to afford and sells at 20 pounds apiece.
